Key Highlights of the Project

Innovative Tools for Inclusion:

Throughout the project, we developed a series of educational games, workshops, and instructional materials tailored to the needs of youth workers and caregivers. These tools aim to promote sexual education and affectivity for youngsters with intellectual disabilities (YPWID), encouraging self-advocacy and emotional growth.

Comprehensive Research:

The project included a European Report on Sexual Education and Affectivity for YPWID, summarizing gaps in existing frameworks and providing actionable recommendations. This report guided the development of inclusive, flexible, and evidence-based resources for educators and youth workers.

Pilot Testing:

Our tools were piloted across consortium countries, receiving overwhelmingly positive feedback. The piloting process ensured our materials addressed the diverse needs of participants, from fostering understanding of personal boundaries to promoting empathy and healthy relationships.
